

DRIVE GAINS FOR TEUTONS IN MOLDAVIA

ARMANS CONTINUE TO MAKE PROGRESS AGAINST RUSSIAN-ROMANIAN DEFENSES.

MACKENSEN HITS HARD

Leading German General Is Reported to Be Pushing the Most Vigorous Campaign of the War Thus Far.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Berlin, Jan. 2.—Continuing their vigorous offensive along the Rumanian front today Teutonic troops pushed back Russians and Rumanians along the valley leading to the interior of Moldavia, the war office announced. A successful bayonet attack was made on both sides of the Ouleu Valley.

The Teutonic forces in northern Moldavia have compelled the Russians to make a hasty retreat and are approaching the bridge head position at the Poltchini. More than 1300 prisoners were taken yesterday in this area. In Dobruja, German and Bulgarian troops pressed back Russians on Machin.

Mackensen Strikes Hard.

In the Rumanian war theatre, however, the reports indicate that some of the heaviest blows of the war are being struck by Field Marshal von Mackensen's armies.

The Teutonic attack is being carried in strong force all along the front from Northern Moldavia to the Danube. At the latter point the bridge-heads protecting Bulgaria on both sides of the river are being assaulted and on last account the Russo-Rumanian possession at Bucharest was in process of being passed back slightly after the hand-to-hand fighting of the Rumanians, Turks and Germans. What seems to be the more important is that to the Russian front ever is resolute to the northeast here, both Petrograd and Berlin actions now show Teutonic progress at some points notably in the direction of Dobroshki north of Izhni Sarat, near the Southern Moldavian border and along Western Moldavia frontier where the offensive of Central Powers in the Transverse valley is continued as assuming notable importance.

Slovens Resist Vigorously.

Danger of the western Moldavian line being roiled and a retreat forced is being pointed out as result of continuing thrusts to the Rumanian front.

I. W. W. LUMBERJACKS THREATEN INVASION OF VIRGINIA, MINN.

Lewis C. French, Former Janesville Man, Wires of Reign of Terror in Minnesota Town.

A reign of terror has settled over Virginia, Minn., as four hundred I. W. W. lumberjacks invade the city, according to a message received by the editor today from Lewis C. French, a former man of the Gazette editorial staff who is at present engaged in newspaper work at Virginia for the Duluth News-Tribune.

An Associated Press dispatch this afternoon gave rather meager details of the trouble which is rapidly becoming more serious:

Fifty-three men arrested in Camp forty-one of Rainy Lake Company for trespass, and information was brought here today for this camp evening. They were sleeping in bunks it had detached from the camp. It is believed they threw arms away.

"Virginia saloons were closed today. Jack Beaton, ordered from Virginia City, is said to have gone to Rice Lake, Wis., it is believed, and his arrival followed and may end the trouble.

Some of the men arrested are termed 'professional' I. W. W. agitators by police, and had much money. Mills here are working."

Virginia is in the heart of the iron and lumber region of Minnesota and has been continually in the throes of labor wars. The I. W. W. agitators have been known for the spreading of their propaganda.

Miss Winifred Granger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Granger, North Jackson street, who has been teaching at Buhl, a range town near Virginia, left last week for Virginia where she has accepted a teaching position which she will assume this week. There is no reason for apprehension on the part of Janesville relatives and friends as a result of the present disturbances.

The editor is Albert Mayron, a successful French journalist, who came to Japan for the special purpose of launching the new organ.

It is believed that the newspaper has the support of the French government.

The new bill limits contributions in a presidential campaign to $1,500,000, individual contributions to $6,000, and prohibits altogether contributions by corporations.

HOLD WATCH NIGHT
MEMORIAL SERVICE
AT M. E. CHURCH

Representatives of Various Janesville Churches Pay Tribute to Memory of Francis H. Brigham.

A beautiful service marked by tender and touching tributes to the man whose memory was honored by the occasion and of devout consecration to the tasks which he loved by those present, was the memorial hour devoted to Francis Brigham on Sunday evening at the Methodist church.

Previous to the event the regular evening worship of the congregation was replaced by a song service, with a choir of twenty voices led by Dr. K. D. Jones. F. Richards sang "Crossing the Bar." The services were conducted by C. R. Bearmore, who also gave the address.

Immediately after nine o'clock the auditorium was filled with members of other churches who joined in the watch night. Rev. C. W. Cummins presided at the meeting and spoke briefly of the wonderful influence of the strong personality and beautiful life of Reverend Brigham. He said that we ought not to mourn, but to rejoice that we had known him and to resolve to consecrate ourselves to the ideals which he had loved so well.

A. Markham spoke of Mr. Brigham's connection with the county work of the Y. M. C. A.; how he was interested in the boys and loved to work with them toward a higher, cleaner morality. He gave himself sparingly for the cause even to the limit of his splendid strength.

L. G. Catchpole, from the Baptist denomination, voiced the sympathy of the entire community for this loss so keenly felt by the city.

J. A. Skinner, representing the United Brethren, spoke of the personal help he had received from Mr. Brigham in the great trust and responsibility of his friends who had occasion to work with him on committees had placed in his judgment. He had endeared himself to everyone by his strong personality.

James Lamb from the Presbyterian congregation, voiced personal loss which every one had suffered in connection with Mr. Brigham had felt at his passing. He hoped that the work for which he had stood might be carried on as a tribute to his memory.

George Jacobus gave a number of touching reminiscences of his beloved pastor which gave an instant to the great tender hearted man.

He said that the congregation could not rise to the great high ideals of Mr. Brigham. He was so intensely alive and active both physically and mentally that he could not wait for results. He said that the greatest ambition of Mr. Brigham's life was to be the pastor of a church which would have a revival every week.

H. F. Bliss likened the record of the life of Mr. Brigham to an open book whose pages were crowded with accounts of good deeds. He spoke especially of his concern for the young people of the city and the place where he had labored for their future welfare. Not in his own denomination alone but in conjunction with all the churches in the city were his plans made.

The Norwegian Lutheran minister, Rev. T. C. Thorsen, spoke most fittingly of his connection with Mr. Brigham. He was described as having "a heart larger than a creed" and with an intensely sincere and eloquent message.

Mr. Spencer spoke for the Christian church, and voiced their sorrow at the passage of one so vitally interested in the helpful work of the city.

A. E. Matheson gave an eloquent tribute to the late Mr. Brigham as a pastor. He said that he combined the qualities of consecration, idealism and vision and in the short time of his stay in this city had a wonderful influence on the social and civic life of Janesville. And not only that, but in the length and breadth of the state. The speaker made an earnest plea for making the ideal of Mr. Brigham real, and closed with the prophecy that "If we have the vision we are bound to do the work."

Several speakers touched on the earnest wish of Mr. Brigham to close the saloons in Janesville and suggested that the slogan "Make Janesville Dry" would be the best tribute to his memory.

The Y. M. C. A. quartet, consisting of Meirs, Fenius, Bearmore, Van Poole and Doane, rendered a touching vocal number and lead the congregation in singing several of Mr. Brigham's favorite hymns.

This memorial service closed with a prayer of consecration by Rev. Andrew Porter.

Afterward the congregation adjourned to the Sunday school room of the church, where the services were conducted by Rev. C. E. Ewing and addressed by Rev. Andrew Porter, Rev. R. G. Pierson. Singing was led by F. K. Doane, and a service of prayer and testimony closed the evening's exercises.

CHIEF DEMANDS IMPROVEMENT AT ONCE

Registers Strong Kick With Mayor Relative to Fire Hazard and Sanitary Conditions—Action Promised.

Chief of Police Peter D. Champion this morning laid before Mayor James F. Fathers an urgent appeal and demand that city officials immediately inquire into hazards surrounding the attendance of big gatherings at the Auditorium building, the rink, all consequent to the incident on Saturday night, following the bankruptcy when seven hundred spectators were briefly held up slowly through the small door near the box office. The large main door, which is usually opened, became jammed and the strength of four men was unable to move it open farther than four inches.

Manager George W. Caldwell, discovered the trouble, sent a number of men to the door, but they were unable to pry it loose.

Chief Champion was in the crowd, which was outspoken in its remarks as to danger he had a panic ensued. To day in his complaint he has favored those who advocated the writer to the effect that the chief danger lies in the Doty mill, and the immediate building to lead on Dodge street near the Doty mill, and the immediate installation of a gentlemen's toilet. The latter came as a result of the complaint several days ago of John G. Karberg, proprietor of the same building.

General favorable weather visited farmers in this district during the past month. The cold spell arrived too late to be a hindrance. Winter wheat is promising and there is an increase in acreage. Illinois corn has been a disappointment in quality, where no frost goes in, quality elsewhere no complain is heard. Pastures seem to be in splendid condition, due to the warm weather and rains.

Bond houses look for increased activity in American securities, due to the decline in demand for foreign obligations. They report this year as an excellent year for investments and the investors in foreign bonds will incline toward collateral issues.

Agricultural Implements.—Volume in this line has been large generally, though slight curtailment in purchases is mentioned in one quarter as due to high prices. Price readjustments has been necessitated by rapid advance in raw materials and the same has been a serious handicap. Long time commitments in raw materials have been necessary to insure future delivery. Labor is restless.

Automobiles.—Nothing new has developed in this line. Volume is apparently satisfactory, considering the purchase of automobiles at this time of the year is always small in proportion.

Coal.—The attractive market for coal has caused the opening of a number of mines which had been closed for from one to five years. Since there has been no increase in the price of coal, however, this has not increased the output of coal. The claim is still made that notwithstanding the insufficient car supply large production has been maintained, business being away above normal. One dealer looks for decreased production for the balance of the month, due to weather conditions, shortage of equipment, insufficiency of motive power on railroads and unusual holiday shortage of labor. Business is prospering with unusually satisfactory collections.

Distilling and Brewing.—Withdrawals from bonded warehouses are largest in the history of the business with sharp advances in price. Retail trade appears to handle business and welcomed recent break in grain markets resulting in the withholding of orders by some buyers. High prices of all grains and inferiority of corn will limit 1917 crop. Collections are very satisfactory.

Dry Goods.—We are told that sales report an increase in business of 20 to 25 per cent and an increase in stocks of about 40 per cent, but that there is a general inclination to great conservatism in future purchases. Wholesalers report increased shipments with orders falling off partly owing to large previous commitments on the part of dealers and partly owing to the feeling that the high crest of values has been reached. The disproportionate salary increase of the consumer compared to the cost of foodstuffs and clothing is mentioned as a factor liable to induce greater conservatism in future consumption, though nothing of the kind is now apparent. Collections are satisfactory and there is a hopeful outlook for the future.

Furniture.—On the whole this business is in excellent shape. Labor conditions are a shade easier and collections are good. Factories are well supplied and have a larger output of unfilled orders than usual at this time. Excess values in many lines are still maintained, but there has been no material advance over last month in this direction.

Grain Markets.—Decided reactions in all markets resulted from the recent peace talk, and future prices will vary according to the continuance of hostilities. Grain for export has been retarded first by car shortage and then by lack of ocean tonnage. Corn is moving fairly well and is in good export demand. Farmers are eager to market.

Groceries.—In the face of extremely high-priced staples there is no let up in the consumption. Among the trade there is the feeling that prices above reached their high level. Retailers are well stocked up and buying is at a low level, as usual for this time of year. Car shortage is blamed by some wholesalers for failure to get certain goods to take care of the demand. Collections are generally satisfactory.

Hats.—Volume in this industry is holding well maintained. However, high prices must eventually restrict volume, say authorities. The shortage of cars, labor and raw materials is making itself felt. Collections are a little short of satisfactory.

Leather.—This is the usual slow-moving period in the leather business and, as far as new sales are concerned, the demand is no exception, but orders for immediate delivery are occupying plants to capacity, and there is good promise of large future bookings, since finished leather stocks are low. Continued maintenance of high prices will depend on the foreign situation. Collections are very good.

Livestock.—Exhibitions at the International Livestock Show held recently in Chicago revealed an excellent quality of livestock. The prize-winning steer sold at auction for $1,765 a pound, a total of $1,777.50, the highest price paid for a steer in the history of the industry. Receipts have been liberal, prices tending downward, and collections are a trifle lower.

Manuf.—This is the usual slow-moving period in this industry. Building operations compare favorably with past periods. However, comment has been made that comparatively speaking wholesale lumber dealers are receiving less for their product than is being paid for any other staple, while nearly all kinds of lumber have advanced in price.

Family Secrets.—Mrs. Youngwed—There is one queer thing I can't understand about Charlie when he knows how anxious I am to meet all his relations. Mrs. Oldwife—What is that, my dear? Mrs. Youngwed—He always puts me off when I want to meet the nice uncle he is continually getting money from.

Baltimore American.

INCREASED VOLUME OF BUSINESS HAS BEEN REPORTED NOW

All authorities report a continuation of the large volume of business. There is no marked evidence of recession due to the peace rumors now current. Bank deposits throughout the district continue to increase and money rates are still down. Demand for funds is only fair, especially in cities, though many country communities report a loaned-up condition in the banks under their observation.

It appears that the marketing of some products has been hastened by the high prices prevailing and this circumstance no doubt contributes to the continued ease of money.

Shipping of grain still continues in manufacturing lines, making it difficult to secure raw material promptly, and has also held up to some extent the shipment of grain as well as other products, thus affecting some collections.

Retailers are doing a large business due to the usual heavy buying of food and clothing can be noted.

No misgivings are entertained in certain reliable quarters concerning the basic conditions here in the event of an early end of the war. They point out that the chief danger lies in the erroneous idea which is growing in the public mind that disaster will follow a complete victory.

Generally favorable weather visited farmers in this district during the past month. The cold spell arrived too late to be a hindrance. Winter wheat is promising and there is an increase in acreage.

Illinois corn has been disappointing in quality, where no frost goes in, quality elsewhere no complain is heard. Pastures seem to be in splendid condition, due to the warm weather and rains.

In the first half Goodger of the Alumni went to the mat in a collision and the medics were quick to give him first aid by manipulating his wrist, but one of the Highs diagnosed the case and appeared with a huge bellows and inflated the weary individual's lungs and he resumed play. The battle was fierce and the first period ended 7 to 6 in favor of the grade. The second was tied at mid-time before the end, when Langhorne of the college quint took Goodger's place and an attack of cold feet and tired feeling combined, permitted the Alumni to shoot a pair of ringers and win the contest 20 to 16. PROSPERITY.
There has been so much talk now and then over the result of the last national election and the reasons that led up to the democratic victory that it is refreshing to read what Leslie's Weekly has to say as to the real reason. The editorial is in reply to numerous inquiries on this subject, and says:

"Who elected Wilson?" and "What defeated Hughes?" Various explanations are offered. We reply: "It wasn't the German vote; it wasn't the Catholic vote; it wasn't the Irish vote; it wasn't the Jewish vote; it wasn't the Protestant vote; it wasn't the labor vote; it wasn't the people who thought it wasn't the people who never think. It was Prosperity."

"While everybody is working with wages high and products of the farm, factory and mine at record figures, who cares who is president? Who cares what becomes of the country? The present is all right. Let the future take care of itself. And it will, for an overruling Providence, it is said, always takes care of Americans and drunken men."

"The editor says these things because ten days after election he took a trip across the continent and had opportunities to talk with prominent newspaper editors and public men of both political parties in different sections. He came to the conclusion that no president can or ever will be defeated at an election held in a period of temporarily inflated prosperity such as we now have."

"It is foolish to say that the result was due to mistakes in the management of the republican campaign or to a failure on the part of Mr. Hughes to meet the issues or to the fact that Mr. Roosevelt was not nominated. Mr. Hughes made a powerful canvass. He was enthusiastically received everywhere, but the indited prosperity from one end of the country to the other made the thoughtless bread-winners indifferent about a change in administration."

"The cry that Wilson had kept us out of war made the women, even those who did not like Mr. Wilson, reluctant to vote against him. Voters in the state of Washington, who had been complaining that the protective tariff had ruined the lumber industry of the state, forgot all about it in view of the increased wages they were receiving, the steady work and shorter hours."

"It is clear that the party leaders on both sides did not fully realize the tremendous advantage that Mr. Wilson's candidacy gained from the boundless prosperity of the country. It is not remarkable that under such abnormal conditions all political forecasts failed and that Mr. Wilson became the first democratic president to secure the honor of a re-election at the end of his first term since the days of Andrew Jackson."

"Mr. Hughes was stronger than his party. Proof of this lies in the fact that he polled 600,000 votes more than Roosevelt and Taft together got in 1912. Chairman Wilcox and his associates conducted the campaign on the republican side with energy, efficiency and with a dignity that commanded respect. The same might be said of Chairman McCormick on the democratic side. The people will understand the situation better in the light of future events."

"The pocketbook nerve is the one that must be touched to make the American voter stop and think."

WAITING ACTION.

It is hoped that at the January meeting of the Janesville city school board, scheduled for this evening, some definite action will be taken as regards the taking of survey of the city schools. Such a survey, if properly conducted, might point out many changes that would be decided savings in the financing of the schools, make suggestions as to alterations in certain buildings, possibly recommend the construction of a new central high school, in fact do a wonderful lot of things that would be most beneficial to the schools and the community.

A survey would give the school board some working basis to present new plans for changes to the city administration and the people. It would relieve the members of the board of any individual responsibility and they could endorse or reject any or all recommendations presented to them by the investigators for consideration. Certainly, if such surveys have been advantageous to other cities, why not for Janesville?

It is certain that conditions warrant such an investigation and it is to be hoped the school board will look at the matter in the light of a needed expenditure and order the survey. While the initial cost may be larger than some think necessary, still it will be money saved in the end, and will bring about radical changes that could not be accomplished by an investigation of local men who might be handicapped by personalities that would embarrass them materially.

INTEREST IN ASTRONOMY.

The newspapers paid little attention to the meeting in Philadelphia a few days ago of the American Astronomical Society. Yet scarcely any other convention of the year has dealt with such far-reaching subjects. Its field was the billions of miles of the starry universe. The meeting represented the best efforts of man to find out facts that lie at the very roots of human existence.

Popular interest in astronomy is not very keen. Probably in the days before books and newspapers, the subject excited more attention. Observation of physical nature was one of many few diversions.

In our own times there has been a revival of interest in all forms of nature study. The fields and woods are full of girls with opera glasses and bird guide books. You find them in rural walks analyzing roadside flowers with a botany text book. At night you see some of them in lonely country roads or city squares, with heads craned to detect the mysterious groups that the ancients marked and named as constellations.

Scientific research has made astronomy a much more interesting study. The problem of orbits and eclipses and seasons has all the fascination of any finely built and smooth running machine. Tracing out the workings of that mechanism gives one a most marvelous sense of the infinite wisdom, skill, and power of the creative intelligence.

The study of such nature subjects as astronomy is a wholesome occupation in this restless age. People are never excluded from it by lack of money. The pursuit can be followed in the remotest prairie village, and by the loneliest dweller in the great cities. Every star, bird, or flower identified becomes a lasting friend, whose periodical appearance is one of the landmarks of life. Those who are weary of the fret and strife of modern living should cultivate these peaceful and rewarding studies.

Death comes to us all in time, but sometimes it does seem as though the grim reaper makes sad mistakes in his selections, leaving many a worthless hulk to stagger along life's pathway, to select younger men whose loss is hard to realize as a necessity.

The railroads don't buy any new equipment in good times, as the mills are too busy to get it out; and they don't buy any equipment in bad times as they haven't courage to believe it will ever be wanted.

The voters would probably all be willing to get out election day and exercise the blood bought privilege of suffrage, if only a chicken pie supper was served them.

There is a relief to the average citizen to be able to meet a candidate after election day and not have to answer a lot of anxious questions about your health and your family's.

MYSTERY DRAMA AT THE NEW MYERS

Vaughn Glaser Presented "The Other Wife" Monday, Morning and Night Which Proves Successful.

A singular mystery drama is what "The Other Wife" might be termed. It shows how desirous and dangerous life is made for a distinguished and happily married man about to be highly honored when a sinister skeleton suddenly confronts him out of his early, unfortunate past.

There were a number of vividly dramatic scenes and strong climaxes, while the acting of the members of the company was all that could be desired. In fact it was far better than the usual acting of the popular priced companies.

NEW MYERS THEATRE.

It is promised the whole town will be whistling and humming "Rackety Coo" after the performance of "Katinka," the brilliant new musical play which Arthur Hammerstein is presenting at the New Myers theatre tomorrow evening. The melody of "Rock-a-Bye" and the other singing and dancing numbers of "Katinka" are the work of Rudolf Friml, who supplied the scores for "The Firefly" and "High Jinks" and whose fame among American light opera composers is well established. The words to the various songs and dances and lines of the play are the work of Otto Hauerbach, collaborator with Friml in the other two productions. "Rackety Coo" is said to be the most catchy song those two famous artists ever turned out, and its popularity on Broadway last winter was a reminder of the old days of "The Merry Widow" waltz. In addition to "Rockety Coo" the score of "Katinka" fairly bristles with such tuneful hits as "Katinka," "I Want to Marry a Man Quartette," and "Your Photo."

NEWS NOTES OF MOVIELAND by DAISY DEAN

Recently Leopold Godowsky, the famous pianist, paid a visit to the studio where he met and was entertained by Mr. Chaplin. In order that the musician might not too soon forget the occasion the doughty Chaplin staged a 250-foot comedy in which Mr. Leopold was allowed to participate. As proof of a newly cemented friendship the pianist and movie star had their picture taken together. This is it. ***

"VIDEENCE." "No good word has been found to describe the spectators at a movie show. It's argued that audience isn't an accurate word because it describes an assemblage of persons gathered to hear something.

Vidience has been suggested as a substitute because it indicates a congregation of persons to see something. But the use of audience will continue, probably. At one time, as one contributor puts it, persons at a movie show hear the lady in the row behind them reading the subtitles aloud."

FOOD PRICES. Max Linder, the movie comedian who came from Paris to rival Charlie Chaplin, went into a fashionable restaurant for breakfast on his arrival in America. He ordered eggs. The bill was $1.15.

He tipped the waiter 50 cents. His companion told him the tip was too large. "If eggs cost $1.15," he said, "a waiter would starve on tips of a quarter."

WHAT IT WAS. Sydney Ainsworth, ordered whitefish in a restaurant in Chicago. At any event he thought he did. But the waiter brought him trout.

"Hey!" he said. "What is this?" The waiter looked at it and said: "Trout." ***

All that remains to be said is that Ainsworth is starred in the series "Marriage Sacred."

David Belasco says that Nance O'Neil is the greatest emotional actress on the American stage.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Jan. 2.—The Norwegian Lutheran church celebrated its fortieth anniversary Sunday at their church in the city. This church founded in the city held its first meeting at the home of J. A. Johnson in 1876, and in all about thirty charter members belonging to the church at that time, membership has steadily increased until at the present time there are about 100 members. Of the original charter members there are fourteen active members still enrolled. They are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Martha Mason, Mr. and Mrs. S. Omsborg, Andrew Berry, Mrs. Nels Larson, Mrs. Jacob Johnson and Mrs. J. A. Johnson. Andrew Jensen, who was one of the charter members, has held the position of trustee of the church since it was founded, and was re-elected as trustee at their annual business meeting held yesterday at the church. A great deal of time in business service has been given to the church by Mr. Jensen, as he has always been interested in the institution at heart during his faithful forty years of service as its trustee. In 1884 the congregation erected their first church in the city on the present site, and in 1905 an addition was necessary to accommodate the growing congregation. Later a pipe organ was installed also a modern heating plant, and now from this small start they have a strong and prosperous church. The first pastor of the church was Rev. C. M. Rydahl who was succeeded by Rev. G. E. Bredesen of Stoughton, and later the pulpit was filled by Prof. J. Livisaker of Madison. Rev. J. J. Jorgenson was the first resident pastor, and was succeeded by Prof. B. G. Ristad, who in 1892 accepted the principalship of the Albion Academy. In 1900 Rev. Linnevoid, the present pastor, took charge, and through his persistent efforts and winning ways the church has steadily grown to its present size.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl twenty-two years old and I have been going with two young men whom I love dearly. Both of them have just proposed to me and I told them that I must have time to think the matter over.

One is my age and has a promising future. He is in business with his father and will inherit the business when his father dies.

This young man is very kind to me and loves me in every way except one. He simply cannot tell the truth. He exaggerates and dodges the truth at all times. The other young man is five years older than I am—but he has not so big a future. He is a little too religious though and sometimes his scruples get in my nerves. He won't play cards and won't go to the picture show Sunday. Which of these men would you advise me to marry?

Doubtful.

Don't marry either of the young men, because you don't love either of them. When the right man comes along you won't have to ask advice about the matter, you will be so much in love. Living is one of the worst habits a person can have. A husband who makes his wife perfectly miserable. Probably you and your older man do not have tastes enough alike for you to love him and want to marry him. You are very young and have plenty of time in which to see the right man.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have a gentleman friend who has a machine which really holds two cold-water tanks, and I would like to know whether it would be proper to take a trip of a hundred miles with him without taking my small brother along for propriety's sake.

(2) Do you think cold shower water would take no chances. The enclosed stamped addressed envelope is to bring me your treatment for the smoking habit. But don't send it unless it is a sure cure.

(A. R. H.)

ANSWER.—All right. What shall I do with the s. a. e.? Nothing is sure but war, death and taxes.

Household Hints

USEFUL OILCLOTH.

Oilcloth makes good covers for cook books and school books, bedroom shelves, as well as tables and drainboards, shelves, bottoms of clothes, hamper and wash baskets.

Required only the application of damp cloth to remove the soil. Cook a paste of flour and water, spread over under-side and it sticks; no need of facts.

Cut round pieces to fit the bottom of flower pot and they may be set on window-sills without staining.

Bibs of oilcloth for the baby, keep the front of dressed dry better than many thicknesses of cloth. A cloth bib may be made to slip over the oilcloth one as a cover.

Oilcloth mats to put under children's plates at table save much washing.

They can be slipped inside of covers of white linen, leaving one side of cover open, so oilcloth can be removed when the cover fits the washtub.

A piece of oilcloth tacked behind seat-table or sink protects the wall from grease spots.

As a protection to the mattress it is better and cheaper than rubber for the bed or baby's crib. It should be put under both sheet and pad, for it would catch the body if placed next to the sheet.

An apron made like a butcher's, bound with tape and having tape strings, will save the gingham apron when doing dirty work and washing. It saves a lot of washing.

THE TABLE.

Buckwheat—Cases in earthen jar put two cups buckwheat flour, one-half cup red sugar, one tablespoon molasses. Stir to batter with warm water, add a little less than one-half cup dry compressed yeast which has been dissolved in a little warm water. Beat all together thoroughly. Let raise over night. In the morning add one teaspoon soda in a little warm water. If you haven't molasses you can use sugar.

Baked Round Steak (serves six)—

Take one and one-fourth pounds round steak; cut in six pieces, dip each piece in egg, then cracker crumbs.

Season with salt and pepper. Put in hot greased frying pan and cook slowly until done brown and cook slowly. Remove from frying pan, make a gravy by using one and one-half pints water and two tablespoons flour, then put your meat in this and cook slowly in oven for one and one-half hours. This is very tender, as nice as chicken and costs a great deal less.

Meat Loaf (serves eight)—This is new, delicious and economical. One pound ground pork, one-half pound ground veal, one cup carrots, one cup bread crumbs, one egg, one-half cup flour, water and seasonings to taste. Mix all together thoroughly, shape into loaf and bake one hour. When mixing, it appears too dry but it will be lovely and moist when baked. Serve hot or cold.

Grape Pudding—Make very light bacon powder biscuit dough, line one and one-half inch deep tin and press down in middle. Take two cups of grapes, heat and put through sieve.

Take juice, add sugar to make jelly, cool a little and pour on biscuit dough.

Place in hot oven and bake till dough is done. Cool a little and serve with whipped cream.

Bacon Cream Pie—Crust part: One cup sugar, three eggs beaten separately, one and one-half cups flour, two tablespoons milk, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, flavor with vanilla or lemon. Bake in hot oven until crust is brown. When cool cut in two and put cream between. Cream part: Use two cups milk in double boiler, add one round tablespoon butter. Put in a bowl one cup sugar, one-half cup flour, add two eggs. Stir this into milk as it begins to boil and stir till thick. Flavor same as crust part. Make two pies.

Eaked Apple Dumplings—One-half cup sugar, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one tablespoon each of butter and lard. Mix like pie dough and add cold water enough to make dough. Roll in one direction divide in small pieces, put one-fourth apple in each, dust with sugar and cinnamon, cover with dough and boil in lemon sauce. Lemon Sauce: One cup sugar, one teaspoon flour, one cup water, grated rind and juice of one lemon, small lump of butter. Boil till clear. This makes about ten good-sized dumplings.

"I think so. I will see about it for you. How I wish I could offer you a room to rest in," Miss Volmar's room was sad.

"You dear, generous woman. After turning yourself out of house and home to take in the children when they were in trouble, I think you have nothing to apologize for." Mrs. Gerard stooped and kissed the quiet little woman.

"They did not know," replied the soft voice. "Now you go to sleep." He closed his eyes wearily. When Marjory came in he was sleeping.

"It is all right, dear; the diamonds are found," she replied quietly.

"Everything is going beautifully."

Tom sat up in bed, but fell dizzily back on the pillows.

"Why didn't they tell me?" he muttered.

"They did not know," replied the soft voice. "Now you go to sleep."

He closed his eyes wearily. When Marjory came in he was sleeping.

HEALTH TALKS

DYSPEPSIA T

HE DECEIVER

If dyspepsia or stomach trouble were the definite condition many sufferers imagine, the cure would be as simple as the nostrum testimonial would have you believe. But, alas, these dyspepsias (not diseases) are among the most illusive with which we have to deal.

The stomach is a signal station for the great autonomic or sympathetic nervous system. Prolonged dyspepsia, when not psychical in origin, is, when not the result of care or worry anxiety—as Cannon, Crile, Pawlow and others have so clearly established—is very likely to indicate one of the following causes: Ulcer, cancer, obstructive lesions (such as polyps, kinks, adhesions), gall-sac disease (or gall-stones), disease of the appendix. We are speaking now of dyspepsia or stomach trouble of long duration or obstinate origin, not the acute upset of a rare dietary excess.

"Acidity" or "sour stomach" occurs with remarkable frequency in the correspondence of this department. We are asked every day to suggest remedies or diets for the relief of acidity. One could as successfully prognosticate next week's weather. It is impossible to know, in given instances, whether excessive acidity is an excess of the normal hydrochloric acid or the result of stasis and consequent fermentation of food. The dietetic or other treatment which would be appropriate for excessive hydrochloric acid would be useless or even an aggravation in the case of acidity from fermentation. And, contrary to common belief, the presence of gas in the stomach is no proof that the acidity is from fermentation, for gas eruptions are one of the symptoms of persons with ulcer and other organic conditions complain-

GINGLES' JINGLES

PROUD.

Of what may the spirit of mortal be proud? We hover awhile when we pass like a cloud, we're here but a minute, check out and are gone, don't get a good start 'till we beat it for you.

And yet we're some busy at least it so seems, quite active at something, or wrapped up in dreams, a few of us huddle, go to it and dig, we know if we don't it's all off with the jig: while others don't care, their ambition in life, is finding how far they can back from the strife, but we should accomplish, should work and arrive, to make a good showing each mortal should strive. And yet it's not money that marks us as great, not leaving behind a ten million estate, our greatness can never be judged by our cash, not fixed by the togs and the diamonds we flash. There's only one thing with which we've been endowed, one thing we may turn to and well may be proud, and that is good character—proud may we be, if taint of character we have been free.

Tartar in Baking Powder. Kindly inform me if tartar is objectionable in a baking powder.

(A. R.)

ANSWER.—A baking powder containing tartaric acid is preferable to plain soda, for this reason. Soda reduces or destroys vitamin C in flour. Tartaric acid or sour milk neutralizes much of the soda, and hence renders it less injurious. (Vitamins probably are amorphous-containing principles of organic food substances essential to health and life—principles often ignored in food analysis—called "ash.") Pellagra is believed to depend upon a deficiency of vitamins in the diet. Unpolished rice, undenatured (whole wheat) flour and other cereals, fresh eggs, meat and milk contain large proportions of vitamins.

Comfortable couches were arranged for the pigs in the shade of trees on her father's farm. Her pig men consisted of milk, timothy, clover, salt lime, coal, green beans, and all were served in individual troughs.

ARTIST "COMES BACK" AFTER THIRTY-FOUR YEARS WITH BUST OF KITCHENER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

London, Jan. 2.—Richard Bolt, artist, came back after 34 years of retirement to paint and modelled a bust of Lord Kitchener so lifelike that he was offered $50,000 for it. Art is priceless to Bolt, however, and his masterpiece has been claimed by the Government. A cannon from the British artillery has been set aside to make the casting.

Bolt's last previous work was a bust of Sir Richard Burbridge which the academy refused to accept. Shortly after the refusal he lost the power of one arm and gave up his work.

The artist was one of Kitchener's worshippers and soldier's mood. When England was stunned by Kitchener's loss, Bolt and his wife improvised a secret studio in their home and the sculptor began work anew to express in clay what was in his fingers.

"I had never spoken a word to Lord Kitchener," said Bolt modestly, "but I have observed him many times, noting his features keenly and to the minutest detail of every mood. I could not rest until I had put the knowledge to expression. The bust is the result."

Critical art committees, judging the model to be a faithful and lifelike representation of Kitchener, contemplated, combining his severe facial lines with some hint of his genial nature.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Sidney went into the operating room in the spring as the result of a conversation between the younger Wilson and the Head.

"When are you going to put my prostate into the operating room?" asked Wilson, meeting Miss Gregg in a corridor one bright spring afternoon. "That usually comes in the second year, Doctor Wilson."

He smiled down at her. "That isn't a rule, is it?"

"Not exactly. Miss Page is very young, and of course there are other girls who have not yet had the experience. But if you make the request—"

"I am going to have some good cases soon. I'll not make a request, of course; but, if you see fit, it would be good training for Miss Page."

Miss Gregg went on, knowing perfectly that at his next operation Doctor Wilson would expect Sidney Page in the operating room. The other doctors were not so exigent. She would have liked to have all the old stod and settled, like Doctor O'Hara or the older Wilson. These young men came in and tore things up.

Sidney went into the operating room that afternoon. For her blue uniform, kerchief, and cap she exchanged the hideous operating-room garb: long, straight white gown with short sleeves and mob cap, gray-white from many sterilizations. But the ugly costume seemed to emphasize her beauty, as the habit of a nun often brings out the placid saintliness of her face.

The relationship between Sidney and Max had reached that point that occurs in all relationships between men and women: when things must either go forward or go back, but cannot remain as they are. The condition had existed for the last three months. It exasperated the man.

As a matter of fact, Wilson could not go ahead. The situation with Carlotta had become tense, irritating. He felt that she stood ready to blurt any move he made. It would not go back, and he dared not go forward.

If Sidney was puzzled, she kept it bravely to herself. In her little room at night, with the door carefully locked, she tried to think things out. There were a few treasures that she looked over regularly: a dried flower from the Christmas roses; a label that he had pasted playfully on the back of her hand, one day after the rush of surgical dressings was over and which said: "R. Take once and forever."

There was another piece of paper over which Sidney spent much time. It was a page torn out of an order book, and it read: "Sigsbee may have light diet: Rosenthal massage. Underneath was written, very small: You are the most beautiful person in the world."

Two reasons had prompted Wilson to request to have Sidney in the operating room. He wanted her with him, and he wanted her to see him at work: the age-old instinct of the male to have his woman see him at his best.

The deepening and broadening of Sidney's character had been very noticeable in the last few months. She had gained in decision without becoming hard; had learned to see things as they are, not through the rose mist of early girlhood; and, far from being daunted, had developed a philosophy that had for its basis God in his heaven and all well with the world.

But her new theory of acceptance did not comprehend everything. She was in a state of wild revolt, for instance, as to Johnny Rosenthal, and more remotely but not less deeply concerned over Grace Irving. Soon she was to learn of Tillie's predicament, and to take up the cudgels valiantly for her.

But her revolt was to be for herself too. On the day after her appointment to the operating room, she had her half-holiday, and when, after a restless night, she went to her new station, it was to learn that Wilson had been recalled out of the city in consultation and would not operate that day. O'Hara would take advantage of the free afternoon to run in some odds and ends of cases.

The operating room made gauze that morning, and small packets of tampons: absorbent cotton covered with sterilized gauze, and fastened together twelve, by careful count, in each bundle.

Miss Grange, who had been kind to Sidney in her probation months, taught her the method.

"Used instead of sponges," she explained. "If you noticed yesterday, they were counted before and after each operation. One of these missing is worse than a bank clerk out a dollar at the end of the day. There's no closing it until it's found!"

Sidney eyed the small packet before her anxiously.

"What a hideous responsibility!" she said.

From that time on she handled the small gauze sponges almost reverently. The operating room—all glass, white enamel, and shining nickel plate—first frightened, then thrilled her. It was as it, having loved a great actor, she now trod the enchanted boards on which he achieved his triumphs. She was glad that it was her afternoon off, and that she would not see some lesser star—O'Hara, to wit—urushing his place. But Max had not sent her any word. That hurt.

The operating room was a hive of industry, and tissues kept pace with

IT IS HARDER TO GET OUT OF A DEPARTMENT STORE ELEVATOR THAN JAIL.

CHAPTER XIX.

"But, Sidney, I'm asking you to marry me!"

"I know that. I am asking you something else, Max."

"I have never been in love with her."

His voice was sulky. He had drawn the car close to a bank, and were sitting in the shade, on the grass. It was the Sunday afternoon after Sidney's experience in the operating room.

"You took her out, Max, didn't you?"

"A few times, yes. She seemed to have no friends. I was sorry for her."

"That was all?"

"Absolutely. Good heavens, you've put me through a catechism in the last ten minutes!"

"If my father were living, or even mother, I—one of them would have done this for me, Max. I'm sorry I had to. I've been very wretched for several days."

It was the first encouragement she had given him. There was no coquetry about her aloofness. It was only that her faith in him had had a shock and was slow of reviving.

"You are very, very lovely, Sidney. I wonder if you have any idea what you mean to me?"

"You meant a great deal to me, too," she said frankly, "until a few days ago. I thought you were the greatest man I had ever known, and the best. And then—I think I'd better tell you what I overheard. I didn't try to hear. It just happened that way."

He listened doggedly to her account of the hospital gossip, doggedly and with a sinking sense of fear, not of the talk, but of Carlotta herself. Usually one might count on the woman's silence, her instinct for self-protection.

"Probably not. She knows it's coming; that's all."

"Sometimes I have wondered—"

"So have others. She oughtn't to be here, of course. But among so many there is bound to be one now and then who—who isn't quite—"

She hesitated, at loss for a word.

"Did you—did you ever think over that trouble with Miss Page about the medicines? —That would have been easy, and like her."

"She hates Miss Page, of course, but I hardly think— If that's true, it was nearly murder."

There were two voices, a young one, full of soft southern inflections, and an older voice, a trifle hard, as from disillusion.

They were working as they talked. Sidney could hear the clatter of bottles on the tray, the scraping of a moved table.

"He was crazy about her last full."

"Miss Page?" (The younger voice, with a thrill in it.)

"Carlotta. Of course this is confidential."

"Surely."

"I saw her with him in his car one evening. And on her vacation last summer—"

The voices dropped to a whisper. Sidney, standing cold and white by the sterilizer, put out a hand to steady herself. So that was it! No wonder Carlotta had hated her. She was bringing her his warmed-over emotions. She remembered the bitterness of her month's exile, and its probable cause. Max had stood by her then. Well he might, if he suspected the truth.

For just a moment she had an illuminating flash of Wilson as he really was, selfish and self-indulgent, just a trifle too carefully dressed, daring as to eye and speech, with a carefully-calculated daring, frankly pleasure-loving. She put her hands over her eyes.

The voices in the next room had risen above their whisper.

"Genius has privileges, of course," said the older voice. "He is a very great surgeon. Tomorrow he is to do the Edwards operation again. I am glad I am to see him do it."

Sidney still held her hands over her eyes. He was a great surgeon; in his hands he held the keys of life and death. And perhaps he had never cared for Carlotta: she might have thrown herself at him. He was a man, at the mercy of any scheming woman.

She tried to summon his image to her aid. But a curious thing happened. She could not visualize him. Instead, there came, clear and distinct, a picture of K. Le Moine in the hall of the little house, reaching one of his long arms to the chandelier over his head and looking up at her as she stood on the stairs.

"I'm afraid I do, Max."

"Then I'm yours, and only yours, if you want me," he said, and took her in his arms.

He was riotously happy, must hold her off for the joy of drawing her to him again, must pull off her gloves and kiss her soft bare palms.

A little girl who was trying to tell

"I love you, love you," he cried, and beat down to bury his face in the warm hollow of her neck.

Sidney glowed under his caress—was rather startled at his passion, a little ashamed.

"Tell me you love me a little bit. Say it."

"I love you," said Sidney, and finished secret.

But even in his arms, with the warm sunlight on his radiant face, with his lips to her ear, whispering the divine absurdities of passion, in the back of her obstinate little head was the thought that while she had given him her first embrace, he had held other women in his arms. It made her passive, prevented her complete surrender.

She broke the news of her engagement to K. herself, the evening of the same day. The little house was quiet when she got out of the car at the door. Harriet was asleep on the couch at the foot of her bed, and Christine's rooms were empty. She went upstairs to the room that had been her mother's, and took off her hat. She wanted to be alone, to realize what had happened to her. A year ago her half promise to Joe had gratified her sense of romance. She was loved, and she had thrived to it.

Everyday Wisdom

LIFE'S TOO-TAME

WHY DON'T YOU

ANNOY ME

ANNOCANCES

Let us cherish the annoyances that we have. Let us try to get more annoyances, not fewer.

Annoyances make us fat. Annoyances make us happy.

Let us be annoyed as we work, for we shall then do better work.

Let us be annoyed as we play, for we shall then enjoy our play.

It is the people with lots of annoyances in this world who are happiest. It is the people with only a few straggling annoyances that complain and whine and have a miserable time. So, give us a whole pile of annoyances. Let us learn to eat annoyances, to swim through them, to soak them up as a blotter soaks up ink. Let our enemies annoy us. Let our friends annoy us. Let strangers, old-iron men, Little German Bands, hurdy-gurdies, book agents, life insurance agents, parrots, canaries, bacteria, thunderstorms, telephone bells, alarm clocks, small boys, babies, wives, husbands, and employers annoy us. Well, we don't have to worry much about a lack of annoyances.

It is a part of the scheme of things that each of us shall get a good, liberal share of annoyances.

At any rate, we can each make the best of the annoyances that we have.

ONCE SON OF WEALTH, BUT LATER A POOR BOY BECOMES MORGAN PARTNER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, Jan. 2.—A young man walked into the House of Morgan at the corner of Wall and Broad streets here today and sat down at the desk he had had his eye on for twenty years.

The young man who Thomas Cochran of St. Paul, Minnesota, who born among riches and later forced into poverty, has struggled back up the ladder to the point of success where J. P. Morgan invited him to become his twelfth business partner.

Cochran officially assumed an executive position in the world's finance today.

Cochran was confronted twenty years ago with the alternative of working his way through his last year at Yale, or quitting.

Young Cochran worked his way through the last year. He forewent society in which he had played a prominent part; also football, despite the fact that he was a member of the Yale team; likewise Skull & Bones, the exclusive fraternity to which he had been elected. He took other work, too, and when he graduated he had the habit.

Ten years ago Cochran was working for a real estate company here for wages that almost equalled Wall Street's.

Cochran had his lip up. "He had 'snuck' there seven years at the same salary, but he knew what he was about. He knew what he had and he was content to wait for the psychological moment to get into the big play.

Then Henry P. Davidson, a partner of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, discovered Cochran and his son to be of great value to the Astor Trust company.

Cochran's advance since then had been rapid, but he has stood the test and no flaws have developed.

The real estate clerk of ten years ago today is not only a Morgan partner, but also a director of the Astor Trust company.

The court will hear the mandamus suit of Adjutant General Edward S. Bryant to compel State Auditor A. V. Dahman to pay him full war-time salary for his services as assistant adjutant general of the National Guard last June and all of July and August.

Col. H. J. Turney, judge advocate of the Ohio National Guard, defending Bryant, cites a state law providing that the assistant adjutant general, when on active service, shall receive pay at the same rate as that of a colonel in the regular army, $4,000 a year.

Judge Advocate General Crowder of the regular army, ruled some three months ago that the United States technically is in a state of war with the southern republic.

No civil court has yet been called on to rule on the point.

TEUTONIC SUBMARINE BLOCKADE SUPPOSED TO BE ON TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

London, Jan. 2.—"Although it may seem the limit of preposterousness, to quote the words of Routledge Rutherford, who started the rumor in Berlin, a submarine and Zeppelin blockade of the English Channel is supposed to be established to offset England's blockade."

FIFTEEN APPOINTMENTS ARE DUE FEBRUARY 5TH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 2.—There are some appointive officers in the state service who will know on Feb. 5, whether "13" is a lucky number or not. There are thirteen men in the state service whose names expire on that date and whether they are re-appointed or not will be their criterion of whether the number is lucky or unlucky. The men whose terms of office in the state service expire on Feb. 5th, and the positions they hold are as follows: Henry R. Trumbower, member of railroad commission; George C. Weigel, state auditor; Ray J. Van Doren, state highway commission; Florence C. Buckstaff, member board of university regents; A. P. Nelson, member of board of university regents; M. A. Mills, member of state fair advisory board; H. D. Griswold, member of state fair advisory board.

FARMER LEGISLATURE GETS DOWN TO BUSINESS

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 2.—North Dakota's farmer legislature got down to business today, without pomp or ceremony.

It was a legislative session entirely dominated by a farmers political organization that had its birth in the ideas of co-operative marketing of grain without speculation.

NOSE OUT WITH THREE POINT EDGE IN FASTEST GAME OF
SEASON AT AUDITORIUM

EARLY LEAD DOES TRICK

Sixteen Points Ahead as First Half
Closes, But Spectacular Attack
Gives Them Fight to Win.

It took Mike Knapp and Jack Mitchell from the Milwaukee "M" club, Walt Tippett's latest additions to his renovated "Stevens Point Collegians," just exactly twenty minutes of playing time to develop their stride last year Saturday night, and when they did get started—Oh-h-h! Man! To make a long story short, the Lakota club, trimmings just altered through with the 29-26 victory after leading at the close of the first half by sixteen points, it was some game.

Mitchell and Knapp played the most spectacular basketball seen here this year. In ability the pair is the equal of any two men who have ever appeared on the Cardinals' floor.

Time after time the devastating play brought moments of dismay from the crowd of seven hundred spectators who witnessed the battle. They were all over the floor. Once they started nobody could stop them. But mentioning spectacular play, what little Tommy Croton didn't care to overlook any Cardinal played the game Saturday night the mid-court position from the baseline, away from district did this dribbling, together with his guard, was on par with that of Bill Chapman. He had the crowd behind him all the way.

Amassing a total of twenty points in the first half against a count of ten for the visitors, and they coming in the result of Knapp's two baskets from the floor, the Cardinals played like a church organ in the final period and for the last ten minutes of the game it was a toss-up and anybody's game. Although maintaining their lead, the Cardinals saw the Collegians come back in whitewash fashion and with a vim and dash that made this game the fastest on the local floor this season. Finally, in the whistle blow with just ten but three points to go, a miss is as good as a mile, but the class was too close to be healthy. The Cards have been realizing ever since.

The Lakota opened with a variety attack and before Knapp slipped down the door for his first basket, he buried a goal, Edder and Edson Stitzer, getting all but two of the points, the older finger coming as the result of Croton's dribbling the entire length of the floor, after he had snatched the ball from Mitchell. Before the half ended Edder and Stitzer put in two more each. All these shots with the exception of the third one made by Edler were from easy angles, the "three men down" play bewildering the visitors and cornering them far back gave opportunity to Stitzer, Edler and Atwood, both in their old form and feature with their short passing game beneath the Collegians' basket.

Dalton and Cronin were more than holding their own against Mitchell and Becker. But even more than what the two Cards were doing was the job done by Knapp to Eddie Atwood. The Miller played well on Edler's neck every minute of play. Atwood couldn't move and as for shooting baskets—one under the circumstances would have been added to the w. k. wonders of the world, had it been made. The Jamesville player never met such a sticking guard. During the entire game Mitchell held him to a single basket.

Edder played strong and Walt Tippett carried the entire game. He counted six times in the first half and three in the final. Stitzer had Wahl, the Collegian pivot man, running in circles, getting four in the opening period and three in the close.

Mitchell during the first part of the game tried shots from every angle. They were all dangerously close, but he connected. His basket-eye was greatly improved after time and rest. So was Knapp's. Mike got a basket which made the score 22 and 26 that was a wonder. Standing far down the floor and on the side, he tossed it close to thirty feet and it never touched the rim.

Edder, showing lots of speed, but having extremely bad luck on shots in the first half, came back just as strong as Mitchell, and tearing loose from Dalton, drew four rings and repeatedly fed the ball to Mitchell and Knapp in the brilliant flash of team work.

Swiftly the Collegians overcame the big lead and before the Cardinals realized their court had been cut to almost nothing. Before Edler secured the first score for the Cardinals in the second half the visitors had accumulated sixteen points.

The visitors kept scoring and at one time the Cardinals were but two points off the lead. Wahl who had been playing off his feet by Stitzer in the opening part of the game was now showing his "spit-shoe." Manager Caidow promised Stitzer he had scoreless during the second half and missed four straight free throws. He injured his ankle during this time and eased up on his playing. As a result, soon after the accident, Wahl caged his only basket of the game. It was a toss-up and anybody's game.

Promoters Assure Another
Classy Exhibition.

Announcement was made today by directors of the Southern Wisconsin Athletic association that the next boxing show of the organization will be held June 4, 1917, from tonight about places downtown where, doubtless, the first bout will be fought.

Information was received with pleasure.

The first show put on by the club several weeks ago was of A1 class from start to finish. Two of the best bouts seen in Southern Wisconsin years were staged. W. K. and L. K. were added to the w. k. wonders of the world, had it been made. The Jamesville player never met such a sticking guard.

During the entire game Mitchell held him to a single basket.

Doc Johnstone, who has played first base for Cleveland and Pittsburgh, blames his rapid decline as a batter to the system now adopted by many major league managers of not using left-handed batters with southpaws pitching for the opposition. Johnstone claims in the minors he beat both kinds of pitching equally well.

That Connie Mack has picked up a live one in Pitcher Myers is generally admitted in American league circles. Bill Carrigan is mighty sweet on Connie's lean and lanky beaver. "With that speed of his and his fast-breaking curve, it would be the exception for Myers to be beaten if supported by a first-division club," says Carrigan.

Eddie Foster is hoping Manager Griffith finds some other athlete capable of covering second base. Foster has become firmly wedded to the third sack, and says that playing any other place on the infield seems like learning some new game, so different are the methods of making various plays.

Jimmy Austin of the St. Louis Browns is strong for the tenpin game during the winter months. Austin is regarded as one of the best bowlers in Cleveland.

OHIO STATE TO PLAY
FOUR CONFERENCE SCHOOLS.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Columbus, O., Jan. 2.—Seven football games complete the schedule for Ohio State University next season.

The 1916 champions of the Western Conference will meet four "Big Nine" elevens—Western, Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois.

The chief fight at this session probably will center around proposed amendments to the industrial labor bill object to certain clauses of the bill, especially the one compelling thirty days' notice before a strike can be decided.

MRS. SANGER TO BE TRIED ON BIRTH CONTROL CHARGE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

New York, Jan. 2.—What Mrs. Margaret Sanger declared will be a decisive battle between the friends and enemies of birth control" is expected to begin when the little red headed fire eating birth control advocate who has preached her doctrine throughout the country and gone to jail there many times, comes to trial in Special Sessions court here today.

The specific charge against Mrs. Sanger is maintaining a public nuisance in her birth control clinic in Brooklyn. This case is the outcome of Mrs. Sanger's campaign to establish birth control clinics first all over New York and later during 1917 in every large city in the United States.

"I am afraid that Americans don't treat any foreigners the way the Russians treat Americans," said one man just back. "I have traveled some 10,000 miles in Russia in the last months and been everywhere barbecued by kindness. Strangers smoothed away the difficulties of language and customs for me, saw to it that I had a seat in the crowded dining-cars, and, in short, looked after me as if I were their dearest friend. Other Americans told me they had received the same welcome and attentions everywhere."

TWO WOMEN IN COLORADO
LEGISLATURE THIS YEAR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Denver, Colo., Jan. 2.—Reversing Republican control of two years ago, Democrats have a majority of two in the Senate and one in the House.

The House of the Colorado legislature, which convened here today, will be one woman member in the senate and possibly a woman member in the house after a contest is decided.

The chief fight at this session probably will center around proposed amendments to the industrial labor bill object to certain clauses of the bill, especially the one compelling thirty days' notice before a strike can be decided.

RAILROAD FARES GO UP
50 PER CENT IN ENGLAND

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

London, Jan. 2.—Railroad fares went up fifty per cent in England today. If the same thing had been done in the United States it would mean that a ticket from Indianapolis to New York would cost $31.50 instead of $21.00.

The government has taken over the railroads in England and its reason for increasing the fares is twofold:

First to discourage unnecessary travel;

Second to keep the railroad passenger revenue at the same level.
